Dear Mom, Dad + all,

My new office is in a bank. Since I left home I have had offices in an airplane hangar, an English castle, a French gymnasium, a museum, a bank, an automobile showroom, a French air cadet school, a girls' school, a tent under an olive tree, a Sicilian boys school, a bakery, a German consulate and now another bank. This is a fairly good set-up. The bank director is quite friendly - I guess because we permit them to use about 1/4 of the bank space. I have a room for my sleeping quarters. "Pipo" is caretaker and makes my bed, sweeps and mops the floors and brings me flowers for my "big-time" office desk. I am now dictator of the bank but I'm not making them bow low when they enter my office. I have 5 new men in addition to my others and I am expecting an assistant in soon. Of course I am anticipating plenty of business but I don't intend to let it interfere with my 3:30 afternoon coffee time. Will fight to the finish.

V - MAIL

Love Bob.
